Dear Mitchell:

Thank you so much for speaking to our group about the hazards and remediation of mold. Your knowledge and down-to-earth presentation was especially welcome as you may have detected that we, as realtors, can be a difficult audience to convince.

Many of us have had first-hand experience with mold problems as a result of entering homes in all sorts of conditions. So, it was of particular value to hear sound advice from someone with your excellent credentials. From feedback I received, you made a very favorable impression on some of our most doubting colleagues.

The brochures you provided are being used in our selling packages. Thanks again for your time and generosity.

Dear Mitch:

I would like to thank you for taking the time last summer to speak to our association regarding mold and its associated health risks. I believe that the dozen or so companies in attendance represented a large percentage of the roofing market in our county, as well as some of the largest remodelers.

I thought your comments on the correct method of mold remediation were very informative. The information you provided regarding testing and health risks were valuable indeed. I know that in discussing your presentation with my colleagues after the event, they all felt like they had received valuable information in this area.

I look forward to possibly having you speak again, and I feel comfortable having you as a resource for mold problems.

Sincerely
